

Electronic Data Interchange

EDI is the electronic exchange of business documents (transaction sets) between organizations in a standardized format. The technology supports a wide variety of business documents.

Benefits:

- Mature Technology - EDI has been established for more than 30 years. EDI has a high level of security and well defined data formats, data dictionary, and communication methods.
- Business Integration - Since EDI can be integrated into a company's business structure, it can provide faster, better, and more accurate information. Furthermore, setting up EDI can provide trading partners with a better understanding of each other's business processes.
